Description

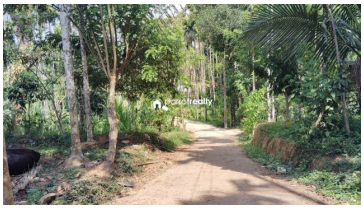

About Vellamunda: Vellamunda is a village and grama panchayat in the northern part of Wayanad district, near Mananthavady. It lies along the route toward Kannur and the western hill regions of Kerala. Known for agriculture, especially coffee, pepper, arecanut, coconut, and paddy cultivation. The area has a mix of hilly terrain, forests, and small rivers, giving it a cooler climate than coastal Kerala. It serves as a local commercial center for nearby villages such as Thavinhal and Payyampally. The population includes Hindu, Muslim, and Christian communities, with mosques, temples, and churches spread across the region. Vellamunda is also known for its strong connection to Gulf migration, with many families having members working in Middle Eastern countries. This has influenced local businesses, housing styles, and education trends in the area. Property Details: Land Area: 10cent.
