Description

Sulthan Bathery is one of the major towns in Wayanad district of Kerala, located along the Kozhikode–Mysuru highway. It is known for its history, spice trade, wildlife tourism, and easy access to several famous attractions in Wayanad. The original name of the town was Ganapathivattam. During the 18th century, Tipu Sultan is believed to have used the local Jain temple as an ammunition storage (“battery”), which later led to the name Sulthan Bathery. Sulthan Bathery is an important commercial center in Wayanad. Pepper, coffee, tea, cardamom, and paddy cultivation are common in surrounding areas. Tourism, agriculture, and trade with neighboring Karnataka contribute heavily to the economy. Property Details: Land Area: 22cents. House: 1200sqft, 3bhk. Water source: Open well.
