Description

About Chulliyode: Chulliyode is a village/region near Sulthan Bathery in the Wayanad district of Kerala. It is part of Nenmeni Panchayat and lies about 8–10 km from Sulthan Bathery town, close to the Kerala–Tamil Nadu border near Thaloor. Known for agriculture, plantations, and scenic hill surroundings. Every Saturday, a traditional cattle market is reportedly held there. The area is close to NH766 and acts as a route toward Gudalur and Tamil Nadu. Sulthan Bathery itself is one of the main towns in Wayanad and got its name from Tipu Sultan, who used a Jain temple there as an ammunition battery during the 18th century.
