Description

About Sulthan Bathery: Sulthan Bathery is a historically rich municipal town in the Wayanad district of Kerala, India. It's one of the major urban centres in Wayanad and serves as the administrative headquarters of Sulthan Bathery taluk, with a lively commercial atmosphere and vibrant local culture. Originally called Ganapathivattom or Kidanganad, the place was an important settlement with tribal communities and later Jain inhabitants. A major landmark is the ancient Jain temple dating back to roughly the 13th century, built by Jain settlers and now a protected monument under the Archaeological Survey of India. It reflects the region's multi-religious heritage. Today it's one of Wayanad's main commercial hubs and a base for exploring the district's natural and cultural richness.
